

France Refuses To Alter Stand; Sends Ultimatum

Paris Cabinet Orders Poincaré To Take Immediate Action
'MAKE OR BREAK,' IS EDICT
German Delegation Still Marking Time At Doors Of Allied Conference

By Associated Press
BULLETIN
Paris—The Allied conference on reparations adjourned this evening until Thursday afternoon, thus avoiding the immediate break which had been expected in many quarters.

Paris—The cabinet council of French ministers Wednesday morning instructed Premier Poincaré to move in the conference Wednesday afternoon the adoption of the French reparations plan as the minimum acceptable to France. In the event the meeting does not accept that plan, Premier Poincaré was directed to ask the conference to register formally lack of agreement among the Allies. The council met under the chairmanship of President Millerand, decided unanimously that the British reparations plan was an abandonment of the treaty of Versailles.

British Offer Plan
The British delegates to the Allied conference at an informal meeting Wednesday morning practically decided to accept the French reparations plan as a basis for discussion provided Premier Poincaré agreed to discuss the British plan. In this way Premier Bonar Law would seek to place the burden of responsibility for a break up of the conference on the shoulders of Premier Poincaré.

MARK TIME
Paris—Germany's representatives in Paris are awaiting word from the Allied Premiers before presenting the new German proposals for a reparations settlement, no reply having been received to the request of the German ambassador here that Dr. Karl Bergmann, the German spokesman, be heard by the conference. Dr. Bergmann said that a definite refusal to hear him would result first in his consulting his government before he could put the proposals in writing.

BERLIN MAKES STATEMENT
Berlin—Germany could not interpose the slightest objection if England or the United States should supplement or guarantee its proposed anti-war pact by special promises or pledges to France, and it was with this contingency in view that Germany named England as a member of the agreement and America as the custodian or trustee of the pact.

FAILED TO GET QUERY
"Neither through the power (the United States) which transmitted our proposal nor through other channels did we receive back a query from the French government with respect to our alleged purpose in limiting this pact to a declaration," Baron Von Rosenberg declared.

"Any suggestion by the French government proposing a longer term," he continued, "would naturally have had our approval and consent. The mere adoption of the somewhat elastic conception implied in the word 'generation' had its primary purpose the provoking of a discussion over the period to be agreed upon."

AWAIT ADDRESS OF BLAINE TO LEGISLATURE

Both Houses To Convene In Madison Next Wednesday—Tax Problems Uppermost

Madison—With the Blaine administration settled in office for its second term, attention is turned now to the fifty-sixth Wisconsin legislature which convenes here one week from Wednesday. The coming session will be confronted with a program of proposed legislation unequalled in importance since the meetings of 1903 and 1905 when the machinery of state government was changed and the primary election system established.

For the first time in 16 years the LaFollette forces are again in complete control of the state, with a majority in the assembly and an edge in the senate if able to hold the support of three Socialist members. The field of prospective legislation is in some way of a middle at the present time awaiting clarification by Governor Blaine when he addresses the legislature with recommendations for new laws. There are, however, a number of definite proposals that will be strongly backed during the session.

Klan Warns It Will Mop Up Badger City

Threaten To Take Action In Own Hands If Flow Of Illicit Rum Is Not Stopped In Wisconsin Town

Madison—Warning was received by the state prohibition department Wednesday that unless it takes immediate action against certain officials of a Wisconsin city where illicit liquor traffic is said to be carried on flagrantly, the Ku Klux Klan of that city will handle the situation in its own way to bring a cleanup.

The Klan leader who sent the message to W. S. Stanley Smith, prohibition commissioner, wrote the warning on the letter head of a hotel in the city involved. Mr. Smith refuses at this time to make public the name of the place which is understood to have been visited by prohibition deputies in the past.

SAYS HE IS AN OFFICER
"We have sufficient proof that the chief of police and other officials of (blank) city are being tamed with moonshine that is being made in our country," the letter, signed by one who puts himself down as "an officer of the Klan," said "This must be stopped," he added, "or we will stop it."

Following is the complete letter: "I take this as an opportunity to give you a lineup on some work that you should be interested in and unless you look after this matter in the near future, we will take the matter in hand and deal with it as we see fit, and as we feel it should be dealt with."

TAMED BY MOONSHINE
"We have sufficient proof that the cop and other officials of (blank) are being tamed with moonshine that is being made in our country. Our cop is a weak and unfit to hold his office and imposing his dirty work on the people in (blank). This must be stopped or we will stop it."

"Most every officer of the law in this city and the sheriff included know of the bootlegging that is going on here. These public service men who are drawing a salary from the tax payers money and the prohibition enforcement agent who are getting their salary from the same source, are working contrary to one another, yet the Klan is cursed for doing the work that these public serving agents are leaving undone, yet the Klan men are taxing taxes to keep the former two in office. Is there any wonder that well meaning people like the Klan take the law into their own hands?"

WOMEN TESTIFY AGAINST GUARDS

Held Up, Searched And Threatened Citizens Who Came In Their Way

Marion, Ill.—Defense at the trial of five men charged with murder during the Herrin riot was prepared Wednesday to introduce the introduction of testimony designed to show that acts of aggression on the part of armed guards had directly resulted in the killing of 20 non union miners.

Ten witnesses, three of them girls and one the wife of a farmer and miner who preceded her on the stand testified at the reopening of the defense testimony Tuesday after adjournment over the holidays.

They told of arrival of guards, the holding up and searching of travelers along the public highway near the mine, the destruction of parts of a pasture fence and the closing of a private road on the mine property, which had been used by two farmers to drive their stock to water.

One farmer testified that he had been struck by a guard when he sought to complain about the closing of the road and a young girl said guards visited her home and demanded a drink of milk for which they did not offer to pay.

Oliver N. Nelson, one of Wednesday's witnesses, who lives near the mine, said he was driving past the pit when he was stopped by an armed guard who shouted:

"Halt, or I'll blow your d—head off."

SEE MURDER IN DEATH OF WAUPUN MAN

Examination Of Internal Organs To Determine If Young Farmer Was Poisoned

By Associated Press
Fond du Lac—With the community surrounding Waupun about equally divided on murder and suicide theories in the death of William Peters, 30, whose body was found at the bottom of a 22 foot well on the Woolley farm last Thursday, the report of Dr. Daniel Hopkinson, Milwaukee pathologist, was awaited Wednesday to establish whether the young farmer had been poisoned.

Coroner Joseph Murray asserted that a combination of puzzling circumstances in the death of Peters point strongly to a murder theory. W. N. Candlish, coroner who retired from office Sunday, signed a death notice Saturday stating that Peters death was due to suicide and has reiterated his belief that the man drowned himself in the well. There is only one way in which Peters could possibly have been murdered and that is through the administration of poison, according to county officials and local physicians who examined the body.

LAWRENCE TRUSTEE DIES IN MILWAUKEE

Pneumonia Takes Henry C. Campbell, Assistant Editor Of Journal

Henry Colin Campbell, assistant editor of the Milwaukee Journal and a trustee of Lawrence College died at his home in Milwaukee on Tuesday evening after an illness of eight days. Mr. Campbell was afflicted with a cold which settled on his lungs and later developed into bronchial pneumonia.

Mr. Campbell was perhaps the most widely known newspaperman in Wisconsin and also was known throughout the nation. He had been connected with the Milwaukee Journal for more than 30 years in an editorial capacity and had had more than 40 years of newspaper experience. He was 61 years old at the time of his death and had been prominent in civic affairs for many years. He had been president of the City Club of Milwaukee for three years.

During the war, when the Milwaukee Journal played so important a part in the directing of public opinion, Mr. Campbell came into great prominence nationally and internationally. Two years ago he received a decoration from the French government for the attitude which his paper maintained during the war on behalf of the Allies.

Mr. Campbell always took a keen interest in the local college. On several occasions he came to Appleton to address the students who were interested in newspaper work. He was a close personal friend of Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of the college, and Dr. M. L. Spencer, formerly head of the English department at Lawrence. He also had many other personal and professional friends in Appleton.

EXPECT COUNCIL TO ASK BRIDGE BIDS

Election Of Water Commission Probably Will Occur At Meeting Tonight

Two important matters await the action of the common council at its regular monthly meeting in the city hall at 7:30 Wednesday evening. It is expected that the nominating committee which was appointed by Mayor Reuter to propose members for the new water commission will be ready to make a report. Appointments may be made at this meeting.

The council having already accepted the plans for the proposed Cherry and Lawrence bridges, it is now practically ready to advertise for contractors' proposals. Thirty days probably will be allowed contractors in which to submit their bids thereby making it possible to award a contract by Feb. 7, the date of the first meeting in February.

PROPERTY OWNERS GET AWARD
Chippewa Falls—Award of $2,300 have been made by a special commission to property owners across whose land the Wisconsin Minnesota Light and Power company will run a high tension line from the Jim Falls Power plant to Wisconsin. The average price paid was about $100 for each tower location.

New Estimates Add To Cost Of Proposed Cherry And Lawrence Structures
MAY ASK BIDS TONIGHT
Additional $30,000 Required To Purchase And Pave Right-Of-Ways

By a vote of 6 to 4 and with Aldermen Wood and Thompson absent the common council Tuesday evening voted to accept the plans and specifications for Cherry and Lawrence bridges, as prepared by Harrington, Howard and Ash consulting engineers. Those voting in the negative were Aldermen Hansen, Schultz, Murphy and Callahan.

This decision was reached after that body had conferred with L. A. Ash in a committee of the whole session for about an hour and thirty minutes. Action to advertise for bids may be taken at the regular meeting tonight.

The revised estimate of Mr. Ash for the Lawrence concrete bridge was given at $63,000 and that for Cherry at steel bridge $200,000. These estimates do not include the cost of approaches right of way and pavements beyond the bridges, but do include the cost of engineering supervision. Both estimates are somewhat higher than the estimates by the engineers last July. The Lawrence project at that time was estimated at $48,600 without the approaches, and the Cherry at bridge at $150,000. The new estimate on the latter bridge equals the amount of the original estimate submitted in March, 1921.

CHANGES SWELL COST
The reason given for the advance in the Lawrence cost is the changes made necessary by government requirements. The original length of spans proposed in July was 31 1/2 feet. The war department demanded a length of 50 feet, but later changed it to 44 feet. The increased estimate of the cost of Cherry at bridge is attributed by Mr. Ash to the increased cost of steel occasioned by the rise in wages of steel employees in September.

A small number of visitors have gathered in the council chamber to listen to the discussion of the "fourth city" presided over by Alderman J. F. Lapien as chairman. Numerous questions were asked by the aldermen and answered partly by Mr. Ash and partly by O. F. Weissgerber, city engineer.

In answer to Alderman William Murphy's question Mr. Ash said that estimates were for the cost of the bare bridges from end to end of the structure and did not include cost of approaches. The estimates do, however, include lighting, brick pavements, sidewalks and rails of the bridges, he said. The best contract price that contractors would bid he estimated at $57,300.

HAVE SPECIFICATIONS
Specifications for the bridges, which were not available at the last meeting, were submitted to the aldermen Tuesday evening for their study and consideration. They include in addition to the bridge a description of a set of materials for the use of contractors and forms for contract and bonds.

The layout of the Cherry-steel bridge was changed somewhat also on account of government requirements. Mr. Ash said, all of which raised the cost to a certain extent. Placing of one of the spans on a skew with the drawbridge on the channel increased the cost a few thousand dollars, and provision of wooden fenders about the piers, as required by the government for navigation purposes, makes an additional cost of $4,000.

Mr. Ash replied to Alderman C. F. Smith's question that the best time to advertise for bids is before the opening of the construction season. At least 30 days, he said, should be allowed contractors to figure on the bridges. Steel girder bridges are replacing the true timber bridges, a superstructure of bridge, he said in reply to Alderman Charles Rose. He also believed that the peak in the price of steel has been passed and said that steel is now moving better than it did six weeks ago.

Alderman Murphy asked for an estimate on the cost of a pavement beyond the Cherry-steel bridge. Mr. Ash said that matter, as none had previously been asked. Mr. Weissgerber, city engineer, stated that $30,000 should cover the purchase of right-of-way and also the cost of a 20-foot concrete pavement from the bridge to Foster street.

He recommended that the city purchase a right-of-way of at least 100 feet in order that the street might be convertible into a boulevard like the west end of College-ave. The city could begin by paving only one side of the boulevard first he said. The distance of this "road," he said, is about 65 miles. There is practically nothing in the way of the proposed right of way except a few trees, he informed the council.

Park Falls, Wis.—Edward F. Lord, who had lived in Park Falls nearly 30 years, is dead at his home after an illness of eight months. Lord was one of the first settlers in this section of Priceco, was a farmer out of the wilderness. He was 72 years of age and had a widow and seven children.

I SPIED TODAY

GALOSHES MAKE A CATCH

Last Saturday night when the streets were crowded with pedestrians, a young lady was hurrying through the crowd with her galoshes slipping. As she passed the bank where the usual Saturday night footers were standing, one of the men was suddenly brought to action by a tug at his shoe string. The open buckles of the young lady's galosh had caught his shoe string causing both of them no little embarrassment.

OH, WHAT A SHOCK!

About four o'clock Saturday afternoon, on Packard-st near the wooden bridge, an amusing incident occurred. A girl in a boy's slipover sweater, plumed skirt and stocking cap was pulling a sled, on which a little boy sat. As she came to the bridge she hesitated, and let the sled run past her. At that instant a second boy, expecting a free ride by "catching on," threw himself "belly-down" on his sled, directly behind her. Since two objects cannot occupy the same spot at the same time, the sled struck the girl's ankles, the girl sat down suddenly on the most convenient spot the middle of the second boy's back! It was some shock.

OUT OF KNOWLEDGE, NOT GAS

A short time ago I saw in the I spied column of the Post-Crescent a story about an ambulance running out of gas as it was about to take a patient to the hospital. The real cause was not the lack of gasoline but the lack of knowledge on the part of the driver. There was a new system on the car which the driver did not understand. All it required was to have a little air pumped in the tank.

SAVED BY PATCH OF ICE

A patch of ice was all that saved the occupants of a large touring car from a serious accident on Monday evening at the corner of Union and North-st. The interurban which reached the Avenue at 8:45 was going west on North-st and the automobile was going north on Union. The driver applied the brakes when he saw the car and it happened that he was on a slippery strip of pavement. The car came to a stop with such a jerk that it turned completely around on the ice just as the car slammed past it.

Old New Years Telephone 'Gag' Still Gets By

Were you one of the many Appleton people who bit on that old New Years telephone "gag"? Many calls were put through to homes and business places in order to have a laugh on the person at the other end of the line. In response to the usual "hello," the trickster asked: "Is this 1-9-2-3?" Of course the unsuspecting victim would start to say: "No this is..." and then remember that it was 1923.

RURAL CARRIERS STILL ABLE TO OPERATE AUTOS

The weather may not be very agreeable to some persons, but it has been favorable to rural mail carriers in this region, the carriers admit. It is not every year that carriers are permitted to use their automobiles so late in the winter as they are now doing. Last year the carriers took to their teams early in December. This year they have not found it necessary to disperse with their Fords once. Tuesday's snowstorm was no exception. But the carriers did not forget the shovels and automobile chains when they left their homes Wednesday morning.

BUS VIOLATIONS PUT UP TO MAYOR

Police Will Investigate Report Submitted By Chamber Of Commerce

A report has been submitted by the board of directors of Appleton Chamber of Commerce to Mayor Henry C. Reuter, asking for rigid enforcement of the bus ordinance as it affects carrying out of the new schedule. The directors complain that busses running parallel with the street cars have not been arriving and leaving punctually according to the schedule prescribed by the new ordinance. The ordinance requires busses running parallel with trolley cars to leave 15 minutes before or after the scheduled of the cars. Mayor Reuter has referred the report to the chief of police for investigation. The mayor stated that an attempt will be made to ascertain whether the bus owners have been showing any wilful disregard of the bus ordinance and schedule. Late arrival of busses, occasioned by poor roads, he said, is not to be considered a malicious deviation from the prescribed schedule.

First All-County Woman Officer Assumes Duties

The first woman to be elected to a strictly county office, Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, took charge of her office Tuesday morning. Courthouse officers and employees congratulated her and bade her welcome. Outside of this there were no formal ceremonies.

Patrons of the courthouse had already become accustomed to courthouse deputies, such as deputy clerk, deputy treasurer, deputy register of deeds, deputy clerk of court. The "divine right" of men in public office was first questioned with the election of Miss Florence S. Jenkins as county school superintendent, an office for which only a part of the electors cast their vote. Miss Ziegenhagen in her victory over Treasurer Louis A. Petersen at the primaries has broken the last precedent in this matter.

The new treasurer has had many years experience in accounting and as an executive. For 17 years she was in the employ of the Willy Co., now the Appleton Cereal mills, as book-keeper and later as treasurer and general manager. During the war she was appointed general manager of the firm and directed the successful business of that era. She was for a time also administratrix of the C. A. Willy estate. Last July she became assistant to William H. Zuehlke, treasurer of the Aid association for Lutherans.

PERSONALITY AND THE REAL SELF

All criminals lie, but great is the man who can stick to a lie, says Michael Hughes, Chicago's detective chief. "We find a liar will tell a different version of the same story to almost everyone. So we lead a suspect into telling lies, then we check him up, and finally in his mental confusion the truth comes out."

This bit of criminal psychology is based on the principle of multiple personality. In other words, that we present a separate and distinct and entirely different personality to each person we meet.

Take your own case. In the presence of your mother you act a certain way, display a certain attitude. This is your personality, as mother sees it. To another person, you are entirely different in actions and attitude. Naturally, no two people see us in exactly the same light. And, naturally, we often disagree and argue about the merits or defects of mutual acquaintances. You may consider an acquaintance o. k. Your friend may consider him n. g. Neither of you can understand the other's attitude.

We all know the type who is a devil in public, but "mighty sweet to his mother, and that atones for a lot." Carry this analysis to its logical conclusion and every one has a distinct and different personality for every person with whom he ever comes in contact. It is humanly impossible to treat two people in exactly the same way—to exhibit the same personality to both.

Some philosopher said something about us entering this world alone and leaving it alone. To a large degree, we also go through life alone. No matter how intimate we may become with friend, mother, father, wife or husband, there is always something we keep to ourselves. This hidden personality, safely masked, is the Real Self. And none of us ever fully understands our real self. We think we do. Then comes a time when we think things over in a bewildered sort of way and are unable to understand certain of our actions. Mysterious enough and interesting in the extreme is human personality, but the greatest mystery, the most intricate and unsolvable riddle of our existence is our own real self.

POISONED

The stomach pump now is used more than any other instrument except the thermometer, in leading city hospitals, so say the doctors.

The lowly stomach pump's rise from obscurity to national prominence is a part of the "successful working of prohibition." It keeps many bootleggers from being indicted for murder.

City hospital in Boston reports, average age of booze victims now is 35. Before prohibition, it was 55. The new brands of liquor merely kill faster. J. Barleycorn used to be a slow poison.

TO SETTLE EUROPE'S DEBT PROBLEMS

Interviews given in London signify that the visit of the British financial mission to the United States in January will be fraught with extraordinary import. The work is expected in England to be preliminary to the greater task of readjusting the reparations and debts of governments of Europe.

Great Britain aims to fund its American debts and thereby bring about a reduction of the interest rate. If the mission is successful in this endeavor, Chancellor of the Exchequer Stanley Baldwin declares that the way will be paved for the advance of another mission, whose appointment Premier Bonar Law has in mind.

The debts of nations are debts of the people and of business. The people pay the interest, as well as contribute to liquidation of the principle, and commerce bears some part of the burden. It is impossible to disconnect trade and employment, that is, prosperity, from such a fundamental economic matter as governmental finances.

The debt and reparations problems of Europe will have to be adjusted as a step to the facilitation of world business.

DEVELOPMENT OF WATER POWER

Only a few years ago geologists and engineers were expressing fear that the coal supply would be exhausted much sooner than had been estimated. It would not be very long, they warned, before the world would be without fuel.

The usual thing happened. A new supply was found. Power derived from water became a cheap alternative for power produced by coal. Whenever we grew alarmed about the shortage of some sort of a necessity, we find either a new supply or invent something equally as serviceable or better.

The Northern States Power company, serving cities and towns in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa, is to increase the generating capacity of the plant at St. Paul and Minneapolis by 306,000 horsepower. Similar development is projected along the Mississippi river by other companies.

The time may come when coal will be valuable chiefly for the commercial by-products derived from it. Power, heat and fuel will be taken not only from the water but from the air, as is planned in England right now and from the sun.

INVESTIGATING RAIL EQUIPMENT

Can the railroads transport the commerce of the United States? Have they ample locomotive and car equipment? Are the cars and engines in satisfactory condition? How many more locomotives and cars are needed, and what will they cost?

The foregoing questions give some idea of the scope and purpose of an investigation which the Interstate Commerce commission had begun. The commission hopes to determine and it can do so, whether there is a shortage of equipment, and what measures should be taken to make the carriers wholly efficient.

An impression prevails, based on experience, that the railroads have not developed in proportion to the growth of commerce. It will probably be many years before transportation can catch up with trade, but the commission, with the statistics obtained, will have evidence which will enable it to order the service improved.

Transportation facilities probably would be improved greatly were the railroads consolidated into larger systems. Merging of five lines into the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad, establishing a route from the Atlantic ocean to Chicago, the Mississippi river and the Ohio river, is a step forward toward the desired result.

Lines that are financially weak would be strengthened through unification, and the general service would be much improved. However, it is because there are weak properties that mergers cannot be effected as easily and speedily as we should like. As consolidations are brought about, it is advisable to bear in mind that competition must not be wholly eliminated. An opinion has prevailed that federal and state regulation has proved to be better than a substitute for rivalry for tonnage. While the idea applies in many instances, it does not suit in all.

COMRADES OF THE AIR

The hazards of flying develop a strong feeling of comradeship among the pilots. No effort is too great to lend assistance to a fellow aviator in distress or to locate a missing machine when it fails to arrive at its destination.

An instance is the case of a Salt Lake mail pilot who was forced to descend in a blinding blizzard on the snowy plains of Wyoming.

When he failed to report, every mail pilot in the territory tributary to Salt Lake was ordered from his route to take up the hunt. Moving in great circles the mail machines examined every foot of the ground on the missing pilot's route. Finally he was found comfortably cocooned in a ranch house, where he had sought shelter. Save for a few frost bites he was unaffected by his somewhat thrilling experience.

Sharing danger brings men closer than the bonds of brotherhood. Knowing that a comrade is dependable and staunchly loyal in the hour of peril establishes ties that can be broken only by death. This feeling is what makes companies, regiments or air patrols efficient. Good comrades are usually good soldiers.—SEATTLE TIMES.

For bootleggers to lose lists of their "high-class" patrons exhibits a cruel lack of consideration.—PITTSBURGH GAZETTE TIMES.

CHILBLAINS

Persons with feeble circulation are subject to chilblains. And barring exceptional instances of organic disease, feeble circulation is attributable usually to the habit of coddling (wearing more clothing than comfort requires and relying upon excessive artificial warmth to keep the body warm) or neglect of regular daily exercise or both of these sins combined. In little ones the trouble is chiefly coddling; in older persons it is chiefly laziness and the low cost of flanneling. Occasionally chilblain occurs when the victim is neither lazy nor coddled, but either subject to some disease which impairs the circulation or exposed to extraordinary cold and wet. I frankly acknowledge that chilblain is due to exposure to cold and dampness, taking cold in the skin, without any reservations or regrets. In fact frostbite is the only pathological entity which can be proved to be due to exposure to cold or dampness.

The bright or dusky redness (erythema) of the affected area of skin, whether on the fingers, toes, soles, cheeks, ears or nose, disappears under pressure of the finger, but immediately returns when the pressure is removed. Tenderness, itching or burning sensations accompany the redness, especially heat. The chilblain feels cool to the touch, not hot.

The first factor in prevention is proper clothing. Many misguided mothers imagine little tots require proportionately more clothing to keep them comfortable in winter than adults do. This is a serious mistake. Children naturally have a more efficient internal heating system than adults and as a rule they suffer depression if they are heavily loaded with all sorts of coddling calculated to "protect" them from "taking cold." I do not advise warm knickerbockers or an essential mode for all children, but I say that there is no doubt that children who go bareheaded throughout the winter are less susceptible to disease, and warmer or more comfortable in the severest cold, than are children who are coddled. The less clothing a child, or anybody else, wears at any time and in any environment having due regard for physical (not mental) comfort, the better for health.

Excessive sweating of the feet favors chilblain. If the stockings are very damp when removed, the sweating should be controlled by proper treatment. Wool or cashmere stocking feet are advisable, provided underclothing of similar texture is worn, but not, I think, when cotton or linen underclothing is worn in winter. Cork insoles afford good insulation for the feet. Care should be taken to avoid steel or iron pegs in soles or heels. Rubbers rather than leather shoes should never be worn except when one must walk through the wet. Tight shoes impede circulation and favor chilblain. Low shoes or oxfords are preferable to high shoes or boots tightly buttoned or laced about the ankle or leg.

To relieve chilblain rub the affected area with camphorated oil (camphor liniment) or witch hazel or bay rum, then paint with a solution of two drams of ichthyol in an ounce of water, and powder with talcum, or in mild cases omit the ichthyol.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Brain Gems

Two of our neighbors are forever singing the praises of "Old Doctor Brady's Brain Gems," which they declare have just about killed the pill trade in their homes. Won't you give us the recipe for these wonderful gems?—Mrs. H. M.

Answer—One cupful each of wheat flower, wheat bran and sweet milk; one egg well beaten, butter the size of a walnut, melted, pinch of salt; teaspoonful of baking powder. Shake all together in any convenient silk bag. Bake in gem tins. They'll do when the Indian yard doctor has the liver complaint and can't get around to his customers.

Tonsils And X-ray

Please inform me in what ways tonsils may be removed other than by surgery. Is X-ray treatment of any value?—H. W. B.

Answer—I know of no other way than surgery. X-ray treatment will shrink tonsils and adenoids in children and is the method to be preferred in many such cases. X-ray treatment is sufficient for merely enlarged tonsils. It is not very effective for infected tonsils, nor does it seem to have much effect upon old fibroid or submerged tonsils.

Whooping Cough

How long must a child have whooping cough before there ceases to be danger of giving it to others?—S. M.

Answer—Average 30 days. Perhaps less than three weeks in some cases. Unquestionably longer, six weeks, in other cases. Child should be kept isolated until all coughing ceases.

MIGHT BE GOOD IDEA IF ALL

AGREED TO OBEY THE LAW

The suggestion of Representative Upshaw of Georgia that, in view of the fact that among the most flagrant violators of the Volstead enforcement law are some Federal officials, all of the latter should take an oath to abstain from intoxicants, has been received with varied emotions throughout the country. There is general approval of the suggestion that laws should be enforced and that all good citizens, as well as those in official life, should lead to this end but some editors, at least, take the Upshaw proposal humorously. Others dispose of it by quietly pointing out that, inasmuch as every office holder, from the President down, already have sworn to uphold the constitution and administer the laws, it is hard to see where a new oath would prove any more effective.

"Mr. Upshaw's proposal is a challenge to conscience, an appeal for consistency," interprets the Dallas JOURNAL. "But when the proposed pledge is considered, together with the element to whom it has been presented, one is reminded of the lines of an old poem which asked:—'Will they do it, dare they, do it? The suggested answer is they won't and they don't.' In the opinion of the Milwaukee SENTINEL 'there is no excuse for Congressmen voting for a law which outruns their own private practice. Furthermore, is there any excuse for half-hearted enforcement on the ground that a drastic campaign would raise so much opposition that the present law would be swept off the statute books and replaced by a modified enactment? To face the matter squarely it is freely charged that prohibitionists are afraid of too strict enforcement fearing a popular revulsion of feeling.' But the 'movement to make Congress dry is a good one,' the Charleston MALL argues. 'Congress makes our laws and it is a travesty on democratic principles for a body that makes our laws to violate them. Obeyance of the law is the foundation principle of a democracy. It cannot be ignored with impunity, and at the same time this fact should be a standing warning to be sure about the laws we make before we make them.'"

In the opinion of the Richmond NEWS LEADER, however, "public officials are not the only people who should take to themselves the hard truths somewhat garishly presented by Congressman Upshaw. The people who lead financially and socially in every American city need a revival of noble obligations. The standard of prohibition enforcement never will be higher than that set by the so-called best people. If they make it a jest can others be expected to take it seriously?" The Richmond TIMES DISPATCH on its part believes that "the plain truth is a large section of the public is not deeply impressed by the sincerity of many public officials who engage in haranguing the country about its duty with respect to Volsteadism. When absolute respect for all laws becomes manifest in official life it will not be so difficult to breed the same respect in men and women generally." There is distinct scepticism in the mind of the Hartford COURANT that the public function "demanded by Mr. Upshaw ever will take place. Whether or not his dramatic entry into the ranks of the prohibitionists will greatly help that cause we cannot say. But it appears that he, at least, is not inclined lightly to put down the banner that, almost by chance, he was allowed to wave so dramatically in the van of his fellow workers."

Incidentally the Rochester HERALD declares that "one of the chief markets for booze is found in the lobbies of the House and Senate. None of the public buildings is closed to bootleggers." Sarcastically reviewing this allegation the Detroit FREE PRESS suggests that "Upshaw is plainly a dangerous radical and should be suppressed. The Georgia man not only voted for the eighteenth amendment but he is personally as well as politically dry. Isn't he satisfied with the action of a majority of his colleagues in supporting and maintaining the measure which make drinking unlawful without his trying to deprive them of their own little nip when they want it? For the life of us we can't imagine what Upshaw is thinking of. Is he trying to undermine the very foundations of the constitution? His idea is outrageous, preposterous. Congress should have howled him down. Following out this line of thought the Springfield UNION declares that "When Representative Upshaw returns to Washington after the holidays we expect to read reports of thousands of thoroughly frightened officeholders standing in line outside his door awaiting their turn to kneel before him and solemnly swear to obey his commands. Yet it is just possible that somewhere may be found one having the outrageous effrontery to look Upshaw calmly in the eye and tell him to go—well let us say Georgia."

The Waterbury REPUBLICAN does not consider there was anything "personal" in the declaration of the Georgia member because "it was made to all responsible citizens—the citizens who like to think of themselves as respectable. The preservation of respect for law in this country depends primarily upon them and just now it is contingent upon their attitude toward the prohibition laws." Warmly praising Upshaw for having "the full courage and logic of his convictions the New York EVENING WORLD insists that 'once raised the question will not down. The utility of present prohibition enforcement has become a State and National worry. The corruption bred by present enforcement law has become a civic menace. And now consistency points a legislative finger at the fact that present prohibition weighs most

Minorities Are Helped By Danes

(Finn T. B. Fris, in Current History Magazine.)

The most important problem connected with the future of North America is undoubtedly the position and treatment of the German minority now within the borders of Denmark. It is probably safe to say that the German element at present does not exceed 20,000 or 25,000 out of a total population of about 170,000.

How is Denmark going to treat this foreign minority? The most important test of a sincere intention to treat a foreign minority fairly is undoubtedly the regulations of its right to use its own language in school, in church and at meetings.

In the cities, where most of the Germans live, the Danish authorities have now established two parallel sets of public schools (primary and secondary), or departments of the same school, one Danish and one German. The Danish schools give instruction in German (as all secondary schools in Denmark do), and the German schools give a few hours a week to instruction in Danish language and history.

In the rural districts German public schools are established wherever 20 per cent of the parents in the community demand it. In addition, the German population is at perfect liberty to educate its children in private schools—a right granted all persons in Denmark—provided that certain minimum standards are maintained.

Lightly on many of those whose sworn duty is to execute, interpret and enforce the Nation's laws. How much more confusion, demoralization and shame are we to suffer from this law before we modify it?"

His address was "a real nail which he hit upon the head," says the Port Huron TIMES HERALD. He demanded that "higher-ups" take a sacred oath to abstain from intoxicants at all times. And it's a bigger question than enforcing the dry laws. There'd be a mighty lot less of various sorts of law violation if all of the people who look upon themselves as law abiding citizens were more particular in the observance of all laws, even those laws which they do not like, and which they think interfere with their liberties unnecessarily." So far as his appeal was concerned "so good," suggests the Quincy WHIG JOURNAL, "but why stop with the officials? In making an ideal condition real why not make it broad enough to solve the problem." The Philadelphia RECORD points out that "all officials have taken an oath to obey the Constitution and enforce the laws and why should Mr. Upshaw put any more faith in a second oath?" But the Baltimore SUN suggests that "Mr. Upshaw ought to know that any man who does not favor total abstinence has no conscience that can be appealed to. The really logical way to make prohibition law is to disfranchise every voter who will not take an oath of allegiance to the Anti-Saloon League. Why not a constitutional amendment to that effect? It is clear that half measures can no longer be depended upon. Let Mr. Upshaw introduce the twentieth amendment at once. Force is the only way to reduce the wicked to subjection."

Q. What is the oldest drama? J. W. E.

A. It is impossible to say definitely which is the oldest drama. Certainly one of the oldest is the Book of Job which was written either in the last century of Persian rule, or shortly after the conquest of Alexander the Great. The earliest extant Sanskrit play, The Toy Cart, dates probably from the close of the second century, A. D. Chinese drama dates from the Emperor Yuen Tsung (A. D. 120). Dramatic pieces were called Tehhouen Kih.

Q. Where did tarring and feathering originate? H. B. L.

A. It is thought that Richard Coeur-de-Lion invented it. When he sailed for the Holy Land, Richard made sundry laws for the regulation of his fleet. One of them was that "a robber who shall be convicted of theft shall have his head cropped after the manner of a champion, and boiling pitch shall be poured thereon, and then the feathers of a cushion shall be shaken out upon him, so that he may be known, and at the first land at which the ship shall touch he shall be set ashore."

Q. Who was Mrs. Grundy? W. M. R.

A. Mrs. Grundy was a personage constantly appealed to in the phrase, "But what will Mrs. Grundy say?" in Morton's play, "Speed the Plough" (1800), but who never appears among the dramatic personae. The phrase has come to stand for the judgment of society in general upon actions or conduct.

Q. Was Norman Hapgood ever in diplomatic service?

A. Norman Hapgood was United States Minister to Denmark from February to December, 1919.

Q. Did the custom of labor parades originate in the United States? C. H.

A. The custom of having labor parades on certain days existed for many centuries, even before the discovery of America. It was the custom for the different guilds of craftsmen to parade the streets of London, England, on various occasions.

In order to demonstrate the social entertainment advantage of folk dancing, Miss Martha Chandler, recreational director of Appleton Womens club will start a class on Wednesday evening at the club room. In many American cities where folk dancing has been taught in connection with other dancing too, much emphasis has been put on making these dances a part of a program for an audience, while their greatest value lies in their recreational possibilities for those who take part.

Miss Chandler hopes to have a large enough class to demonstrate these dances properly to the dancers rather than to an audience. In many places, groups of business women have organized into classes to take up this recreation rather than social or aesthetic dancing.

Milwaukee Woman Declares Tanlac Completely Overcame Stomach Trouble of 5-Years Standing

"Tanlac has simply meant robust health to me, and it is a blessing such a medicine is sold these days when there is so much sickness," declared Mrs. Theodore Benink, 508 Sycamore street, Milwaukee, Wis.

"I had been in wretched health five years, ever since our home on our farm in Michigan burned, and we only saved the clothes on our backs. Worry over this helped pull me down, and I fell off from a hundred and sixty (only ninety pounds). My stomach was all out of order, too, my appetite left me and many days I could eat nothing. Not only my head but my entire body ached constantly, and I felt sure I was on the verge of a collapse.

"I was certainly surprised at the quick relief Tanlac gave me. I started building up at once and now I weigh a hundred and thirty-five pounds. I am happy and strong and well again, and cannot say too much for Tanlac. My husband also took Tanlac and it has given him the same good results."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 25-million bottles sold adv.

COUNCIL TO MEET EDUCATION BOARD TO TALK ADDITIONS

High School Enlargement May Be Prevented By Bond Limit Situation

Kaukauna.—The common council at its meeting Tuesday evening expressed its willingness to meet in a body with the board of education to thoroughly discuss the addition of an auditorium and gymnasium to the new high school. The council will meet with the board subject to the call of its secretary. The action followed presentation in the council of the petition signed by approximately 300 voters, asking for the immediate addition of the auditorium and gymnasium.

Sentiment of the aldermen seemed favorable toward the addition but it was pointed out that there is no money available at this time for such a purpose. A few figures were given to show that the city is bonded practically to the limit.

A section of the statutes was read which stated that no city can for any purpose whatever be bonded for more than 5 per cent of its average assessed valuation for the last preceding five years. Kaukauna's bonded indebtedness at present is $272,000 and its average assessed valuation for the last five years is a little more than $6,700,000. Approximate figures were presented to show that if another bond issue of $50,000 is floated to construct the auditorium and gymnasium, it will place Kaukauna about $20,000 over its bond limit.

Names were submitted by the mayor for membership on the fire and police commission. The council went into a committee of the whole to discuss the appointment and finally approved the following members: E. R. Landreman, W. T. Ashie, Peter Renn, B. W. Fargo and Joseph Faust. Peter Renn had been the only surviving member on the old board.

CANT FLOOD RINK
The question of a municipal skating rink was brought up for discussion but no action was taken. The possibilities of such a rink were discussed and various sites were suggested. It was said that it is difficult to flood a skating rink since the city water which would have to be used is too warm, a fact that has been determined from past experience. The water, coming from artesian wells, is warm enough to soften the ground so that it sinks in, preventing a good bottom of ice.

The council adjourned until Tuesday evening, Jan. 23.

Why the "Morning Grouch?"

Many people awake feeling irritable and nervous—and are annoyed at trifles they wouldn't notice at any other time.

This nervous, irritable feeling lasts until after they have had their cup of coffee—sometimes it takes the second cup.

The reason for this is simple; their nerves are crying out for the caffeine contained in the coffee they crave.

And now, if this "strikes home," ask yourself why you should not quit a habit that makes you nervous and irritable.

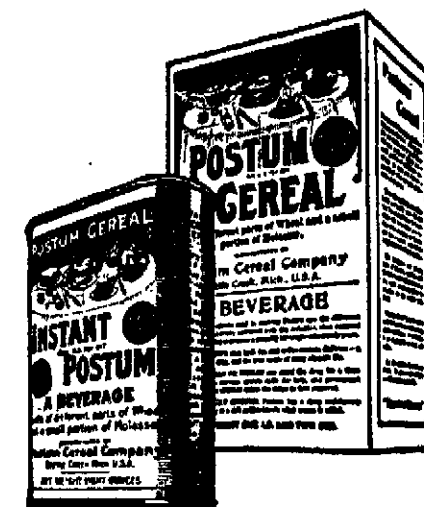

Be your natural self; try doing without coffee for a week or so—and drink rich, fragrant Postum instead.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage—refreshing and satisfying, yet absolutely free from caffeine or other harmful ingredients.

Postum comes in two forms:—Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling fully twenty minutes.

APPLETON POWER PLANT TO SUPPLY GROUP OF TOWNS

Bear Creek Village Forms Company To Market Current To Farmers

Bear Creek village and portions of four nearby townships will be supplied with electric light and power from the plant of the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company through organization of a new corporation to be known as Star Electric Heat and Power company. The latter concern has contracted with the Appleton company to furnish the necessary current.

W. R. Cornwell of New London will be manager of the Star company. It will supply current to Bear Creek village, farmers along Bear Creek and others in the towns of Maple Creek, Lebanon, Deer Creek and the east half of Black Creek.

Perfecting of this arrangement was due to agreement of the town board of Bear Creek to advance sufficient funds to begin construction of the necessary lines. The work is well under way and its early completion is expected. Farmers along the line who wish to use the power agree to donate $100 each toward building of the lines, and they then are given city power rates for the current used.

Mr. Cornwell and the Bear Creek board have been working on the project for some time in order to obtain this modern convenience for the farmers. The lines will be extended to other townships as the farmers place their requests for power.

MOVIE MAGAZINE TO BE ISSUED HERE

Two New York Men Will Locate Office Of Motion Picture Review In City

Appleton is to become the home publication city of the Motion Picture Review, a magazine that has a wide circulation in some cities of the east. Addition of perhaps half a dozen cities in Wisconsin and possibilities of further midwestern development caused removal of the offices from New York to this state, and the chamber of commerce was successful in inducing the publishers to locate here.

Lawrence K. Hoffman and George Macey of New York are the men heading the company, issuing the magazine. Mr. Hoffman already has located in Appleton and Mr. Macey will arrive here later.

A contract has been entered into with Meyer Press to print the 12 monthly issues of the magazine. It is possible that an office will be opened to carry on the administrative end of the venture.

The Motion Picture Review contains approximately 25 pages each month and is a combination of national and local content. All but four of its pages contain either advance articles, concerning motion pictures or players or national advertising of goods sold in local stores. One of the remaining four pages has the local theater's announcements for the month. The other three have advertising of local business houses.

Contracts for circulation are made with theaters in various cities. All parts of the magazine are printed here except the local program and advertising, and insert of the theater's on the cover page. The magazines are delivered unbound to each city, the issue is completed and circulated to a mailing list maintained by the theater.

AUTOS CARRYING WHITE 1923 PLATES

A glance at many of the automobiles seen on the street will remind one that the year 1922 has passed and that 1923 license plates now must be attached. The black plates of 1922, with their white letters, are being replaced with new numbers signs that have a direct contrast of color. The new ones are white with maroon letters.

Many motorists made application during December and received their plates before Jan. 1. Schlager Hardware company was one of the first Appleton firms to receive plates and all its cars now carry them.

Application is supposed to have been made by this time to the secretary of state at Madison by every owner of a machine. Blankets are obtainable from the city and county clerks, the police department, garages and some of the banks.

Would Shut Down Gas Works

"My stomach has been so filled with gas for the last three years that I felt I could pretty nearly supply our town. I also had frequent pains in right side in region of the appendix. Doctors didn't help much. One day my neighbor told me about what Mayr's Wonderful Remedy had done for him and I got a bottle of our druggist. I can say that it will do it and more than you claim for it." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale at all druggists.

Three directors are to be elected to the board to succeed those whose terms expire. A meeting of directors is expected to follow the stockholders' gathering, and officers then will be named.

Mrs. A. R. Brainer and children have returned from Antigo, where they spent the holidays with Mrs. C. S. McConnell.

Miss Mildred Vess, who has been visiting friends at Sheboygan, returned home Tuesday.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

CAPTAIN BLOOD

by Rafael Sabatini
© RAFAEL SABATINI
ADAPT. NEA SERVICE

"Captain Blood has testified to what he knows that he found me at Oglethorpe Farm on the Monday morning after the battle of Weston. But he has not told you what I did there."

"The judge broke in. 'Why, who should you have been doing there in the company of rebels?'"

"I was there, my lord, in my quality as a physician, to dress Lord Gilday's wounds."

"How came you, who represent yourself as a physician peacefully following your calling in the town of Bridgewater, to be with the army of the Duke of Monmouth?"

"I was never with that army. I never was attracted to the late rebellion. I regarded the adventure as a wicked madness. I was summoned that morning to succor Lord Gilday, and I conceived it to be the sacred duty imposed upon me by my calling to answer that summons."

"Vas there ever such an impudent villain in the world as thou?" The judge swung, white-faced, to the jury. "I hope, gentlemen, of the jury, you take notice of the horrible carriage of this traitor rogue, and withal you cannot but observe the spirit of this sort of people, what a villainous and devilish one it is."

Upon that he proceeded to his summing-up, showing how Baynes and Blood were both guilty of treason, the first for having harbored a traitor, the second for dressing his wounds. Peter Blood looked round the scarlet hung court. He laughed, and his laugh jarred unceasingly upon the deathly stillness of the court.

"Do you laugh, sirrah, with the rope about your neck, upon the very threshold of that eternity you are suddenly to enter into?" And then the judge delivered sentence of death in the prescribed form.

CHAPTER IV
HUMAN MERCHANDISE

On the morning of the 15th there arrived at Taunton a courier from Lord Sunderland, the Secretary of State, with a letter for Lord Jeffries wherein he was informed that His Majesty had been graciously pleased to command the governor of the rebels should be furnished for transportation in some of His Majesty's southern plantations, Jamaica, Barbados, or any of the Leeward Islands. Slaves were urgently required and a healthy, vigorous man could be reckoned worth at least from ten to fifteen pounds.

Thus it happened that Peter Blood, and with him Jeremy Pitt and Andrew Baynes were conveyed to Freetown and there shipped with some fifty others aboard the Jamaica Merchant. From close confinement under hatches, ill-nourishment and foul water, a sickness broke out amongst them, of which eleven died.

The mortality might have been higher than it was but for Peter Blood.

Toward the middle of December the Jamaica Merchant dropped anchor in Carlisle Bay, and put ashore the forty-two surviving rebel convicts.

To inspect them, Governor Steed, a short, stout, red-faced gentleman, who limped a little and leaned heavily upon a stout ebony cane. After him, in the uniform of a colonel of the Barbados Militia, rolled Colonel Bishop, a tall, corpulent man who towered head and shoulders above the Governor. At his side and contrasting oddly with his grossness, moving with an easy stripping grace, came a slight young lady in a modish riding gown.

Baynes came and stared and passed on. Blood noticed that the girl was speaking to Bishop, and pointing up the line with a silver-bitted riding-whip she carried. Bishop shaded his eyes with his hand to look in the direction in which she was pointing. Then slowly, with his ponderous, rolling gait, he approached. Peter Blood found himself staring into a pair of heady brown eyes. He felt the color creeping into his face under the insult of that contemptuous inspection. "Bah! A bag of bones. What should I do with him?"

He was turning away when the Captain in charge interrupted.

"He may be lean, but he's tough; tough and healthy. When half of them was sick and the other half skinning, this rogue kept his legs and doctored his fellows. Say fifteen pounds for him, Colonel. That's cheap enough."

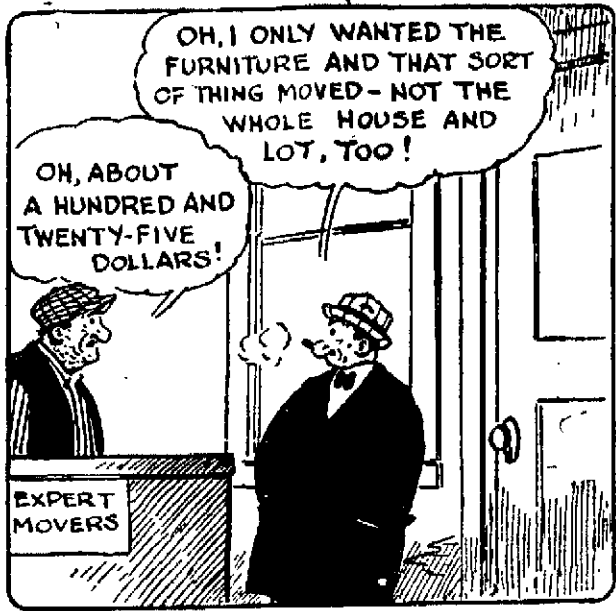

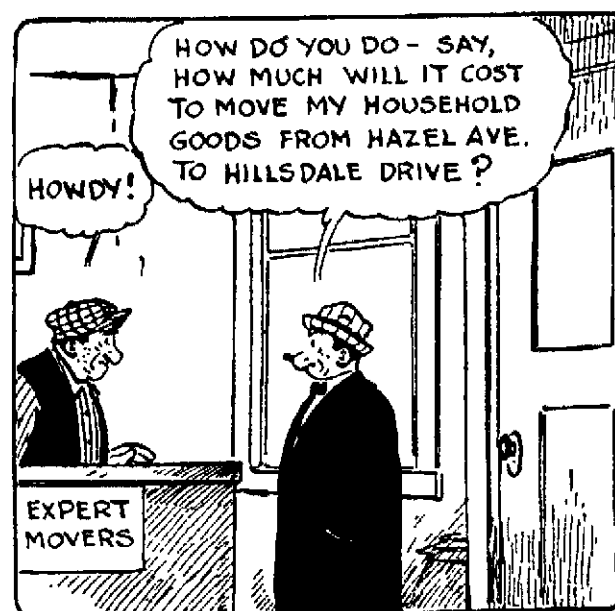

The Colonel finally purchased Peter for ten pounds. Jeremy Pitt went to the same master for the sum of twenty.

Women Disagree On Future Policies Of U.S. Woman's Party

One Leader Wants Women To Form Third Party And Another Says A Small Representation Is Sufficient

BY MARIAN HALE

Feminist leaders are not in agreement as to the mission of the National Woman's Party.

For instance:

"We have," says Mrs. Oliver H. Belmont—"Alva E. Belmont" as she signs herself—president of the National Woman's Party, "a definite goal to reach and we cannot reach that goal over either the Democratic or the Republican road; for our goal itself is a third party, a woman's third party, a permanent political party."

"We have preceded to show," says Miss Mary Garrett Hay, chairman of the League of Women Voters of New York City, "that a third party content and fight with other parties as its foundation is not flourish, but bring about confusion worse confounded."

SAFE AND HAPPIER

"I," says Mrs. Robert Goellet, "am a moderate feminist. I do not look forward to an entire Congress made up of women, or do I believe that women should be in a majority, but I do think that one or two women of the right sort should be continually in the Senate and House to make the country a safer, happier place."

There is nothing half way about Mrs. Belmont's attitude.

Writing in "Collier's" what is described as "a platform which may prove as epoch-making as the Declaration of Independence," she says: "After the few years that we have had of suffrage and the accompanying active experience with the Democratic and Republican parties, it is useless to urge the National Woman's Party to amalgamate with either."

NOT A WOMAN

To this Miss Hay answers: "The third-party ghost that has walked so tirelessly since election day is not a woman."

"To my mind, a third party that would endure could be brought into being only if some great moral or social issue arises which draws to its support thousands of our citizens by an irresistible force."

Mrs. Goellet, the "moderate," is a life member of the National Woman's Party. She recently opened her Fifth Avenue mansion in New York for the organization's meeting, at which its legislative program for 1923 was outlined.

FAVORS THIRD PARTY

"Most women," she says, "always will prefer their homes to public life, yet there are talented women who feel the call of the world, and they should have a chance, with men, to exercise the power that is within them."

"I am in favor of the move for a third party, so that we may stand united and ready for the independence of womanhood made possible now for the first time in 6000 years."

EXPERT SUGGESTS EXERCISES TO GAIN BODY SYMMETRY

BY BERNARR MAC FADDEN

BEAUTIFUL womanhood is impossible without a well-developed, symmetrically formed bust and chest.

This particular area of woman's body indicates her vital condition. A strong chest in nearly every instance insures a heart that is vigorous and capable of satisfactory functioning and well-developed lungs that are in turn responsible for a clear smooth, healthy skin. A flat, under-developed bust, or an over-fat one is equally undesirable and unlovely.

The following exercises will make a decided improvement in the contour of your chest and bust, and will bring it to the point of perfection nature intended it to attain.

FIRST EXERCISE

For exercise one, lie flat on a couch and hold two books over the head in the position shown in the picture, keeping the elbows rigid. Bring the books immediately over take the same exercise with the position of the arms reversed.

For exercise four, hold the books in each hand, the hands spread apart as shown, with the elbows rigid. Bring the arms upward, touching the books together immediately over the head. Return and repeat until tired.

Then take the same position as in figure three, except that you place the left hand against the right wrist, instead of the elbow. Press backward slightly at the same time, bringing the right arm, with elbows rigid, upward to a position immediately over the chest. When returning bring the arm as far back as possible. Repeat the exercise until fatigued. Take the same exercise with the position of the arms reversed.

Do not overexercise at first, but devote a few minutes daily to these efforts, and you will notice a decided improvement.

take the same exercise with the position of the arms reversed.

For exercise four, hold the books in each hand, the hands spread apart as shown, with the elbows rigid. Bring the arms upward, touching the books together immediately over the head. Return and repeat until tired.

Then take the same position as in figure three, except that you place the left hand against the right wrist, instead of the elbow. Press backward slightly at the same time, bringing the right arm, with elbows rigid, upward to a position immediately over the chest. When returning bring the arm as far back as possible. Repeat the exercise until fatigued. Take the same exercise with the position of the arms reversed.

Women Still Are Seeking More Rights

Though woman today has equal rights with man at the polls, she is not yet his equal at law.

She was the contention advanced at a recent conference of American women lawyers in Washington.

It is a condition which the convention was called to correct.

The meeting took place simultaneously with a gathering of Woman's Party leaders to launch a new legislative campaign for equal rights.

EQUAL RIGHTS BILL

The special task assigned to the women lawyers was the giving of advice concerning the drafting of equal rights bills.

Judge Kathryn Sellers, who called the lawyers together and presided at their meeting, occupies the District of Columbia Juvenile Court bench. She was the first woman to receive a federal judicial appointment.

It is not now as a voter, but in the courts, that woman finds herself at a disadvantage with man, Judge Sellers points out.

"That trouble is," she explains, "that our legal system, at its very beginning, was the work of men."

"That is why, for so many centuries, we have had a double legal standard—a standard for man, and a different standard for woman."

"The old English common law gave woman an inferior position in nearly every respect."

ONE STANDARD SOUGHT

"It is particularly appropriate, now that we are trying to secure a single legal standard for men and women, for elimination of the law's discrimination against women, that women members of the bar should be called into consultation and that their advice should be sought.

"It is a great task, and the most important, I think, ever undertaken by women."

"MEN FIRST," CORRECT RULE IN ETIQUETTE

The hostess always rises to greet or bid farewell to her guests, be they men or women, but a woman guest need not rise when being introduced to a man, or woman either, unless this is done as a sign of deference to a distinguished or much older woman. There are, of course, times when to remain seated seems awkward; one's common sense should be the prompter then.

It is the man's place to lead the way into a restaurant and to give all orders to the waiter. The man should lead the way in all public places, presenting the tickets at the entrance of the theater as well as the stubs to the usher, and should follow first behind the usher to the seats, stepping aside there to allow the woman to take her place first. This rule applies to movies, football games and even in church. This custom is one of the remnants of chivalry, where the man is supposed to clear the way. It should not be lost in an unseasonable acceptance of the dictum "Ladies first."—From the January Delinctor.

With the mailing out of a large number of checks on Jan. 1, stockholders of Appleton Building & Loan association have been enriched $4,300 during 1922 through declaration of dividends of six per cent. The checks now issued cover the earnings for the last six months.

This is the largest amount of dividends paid out by the association since its organization, according to George H. Beckley, secretary. Many additional savers have been enrolled during the year and the amount of shares outstanding shows a big increase over last year. Part of this gain is due to the policy of giving savers in the association first consideration when they request loans for new homes.

Approximately one-fourth of the dividends was issued to persons who are purchasing shares of stock on the installment plan, paying small amounts monthly. This feature of building and loan associations makes available a larger sum each year for home building, besides providing a form of thrift.

DEEP WATERS

Chapter 4 — Marriage at a Crisis

By Zoe Beckler

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Marriage with the Barretts had reached the breaking point. Things finally snapped when JOHN BARRETT decided he could bear the domestic tedium no longer. Despite his love for the two children he told ANITA, his wife, that he had to leave her. He no longer loved her and now, he said, he was going to MYRA DEAN, a woman of the world.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Anita Barrett looked at her husband with bitter tears in her eyes. She was moved beyond mere anger. "You're going to ask Myra Dean the honor of taking you?" she managed. "Well—I hope she will do you the honor." And should she refuse you, then I suppose—I may—hope you will return to meet Oh! Anita's voice was an agony of repugnance and despair. She did not wait for Barrett to reply, but, brushing past him, ran from the room.

He turned to follow, hot words, protests, proposals, crowding to be uttered. The slam of a door stopped them. The room rang with the sound of that door closing. It seemed to be the closing of a chapter—the most important chapter—of Barrett's life.

"All right!" he muttered savagely. "Let's go!"

He wandered into the passage, his head seething with drastic plans. His hand absently took a hat from the hall table—not his own, his son's, a battered sport cap worn on many a motor trip he and his boy had taken together. It clung to his fingers as though he could not let it go. Then, realizing he was weakening, he flung it back and took his own hat and coat.

The garment brushed down a flaming red tam o' shanter of his daughter's. How like the color of her cheeks when she came home from a wild flight on the ice-bound lake!

He replaced the hat slowly. Symbolic, it seemed. He could not fling out of the house and all that was in it, without knocking something down—something belonging to his children.

"Oh, damn!" he snapped. "They're old enough. They're with their mother. It's her they love." He paused in the hallway a moment, irresolute. "On! Can't go crawling back. You've made the bold gesture and you're going forward!"

Flinging out of the front door, line; he Barrett strode to the nearest car line; he would not touch his own car—it was part of what he was leaving. In half an hour he stood before a little colonial studio-cottage in a pretty suburb. The bungalow had personality, feminine, yet independence; sensitive, but sturdy. Even before Barrett could raise the shiny brass knocker the door opened from inside.

"Johnny Barrett, what are you doing here at this hour?" sounded a woman's crisp voice.

"Come to offer myself, hide, hoof and all, to you," laughed Barrett in grim mirthlessness.

DRESS HINTS

NEW RIBBONS

Faille, plain moire or satin-backed moire ribbons are being used extensively on the new spring hats. The effect of glistening metal is produced by a very high lacquer finish.

PERFUME FLASKS

Small enameled or jeweled flasks exactly the shape of the ones men carry in their hip pockets are now made for carrying perfume in lady's handbag.

FOR THE BOUDOIR

Besides the regulation satin and lace-trimmed mules to which we have become accustomed, this season we find elaborate ones of brocaded metal cloth, and of Chinese and oriental embroidery.

HARMONIZING COLORS

An unusually smart blouse owes its distinction to the artistic use of orange, blue, mauve and brick-colored silks in a conventional embroidery design.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE

In Burmah, weddings and funerals always take place in conjunction with one another.

Say an important citizen dies; he is buried only temporarily, awaiting the engagement of a number of couples in the village. Then a grand march "wedding funeral" is held.

Neighbors come in large numbers. Family jewels are displayed in profusion.

Adventures Of The Twins

Twins Rescued

Flap-Doodle, the mischievous fairy, kept on pretending that he was the wizard of the Dingle Dell, and every time Nancy and Nick came to him for help he did something mean.

The first time he changed himself into a donkey and dumped them into a thistle patch.

The second time he changed himself into an automobile and rolled them off into a mud puddle.

The third time! Oh, just you wait until you hear what he did the third time! He changed himself into a flying machine and took them out and dumped them into the ocean.

And you, he did all this because he wanted to get rid of the twins. He had stolen the Fairy Queen's wand, and he meant to keep it.

"I'll keep it even if she sends a hundred children to get it," he boasted.

The trouble was that as long as he had the wand he could change anything he didn't like into something he did like, and that nobody else liked.

Well, anyway!

Splash went Nancy and Nick right down in the middle of Briny Ocean. And their Green Shoes couldn't help them a bit because they were washed away.

As luck would have it, however, Captain Pennywinkle, the fairy traffic policeman under the sea and an old friend of the children's, rode along just then on Curly, his sea-horse, and saw what had happened.

So he called Mr. Whale.

"Here, you!" he called sharply. "Stop spouting so much water and carry these children safely to shore!"

And the whale did so at once.

WOODVILLE WANTS SOO TO GIVE TRAIN SERVICE

Resident of Woodville, a small village two miles east of Sherwood, have appealed to the Wisconsin railroad commission for an order to compel the Soo Line to stop its trains at the Woodville station.

At a hearing conducted by a representative of the company at Menasha it was shown that the road between Menasha and Hilbert Junction, over which the trains are jointly operated by the Soo Line and St. Paul railway, is owned and operated by these two companies in partnership. The Woodville schedule is observed by the latter road.

GOOD MANNERS

The person who always is trying to set others right seldom is popular socially. Few people enjoy having their shortcomings commented on. Unless one has a very definite responsibility toward another as of parent toward a child, the correction of the latter's errors may well be left to those upon whom such responsibility does rest.

SLEEVES FOR SPRING

From Paris we learn that sleeves vary almost as much as necklines. They very short version is giving way to long sleeves and three-quarter lengths. The bell or mandarin sleeve is often used and lined with a contrasting material.

BIG SHOW IN ARMORY FOR WRESTLING FANS TONIGHT

FUTURE OF SPORT IN APPLETON TO DEPEND ON FANS

Hill And Hindu Wizard Headline Attraction—Good Preliminaries

Appleton wrestling fans will go to the pole tonight. A vote will be held whether Appleton is to get further mat attractions in this city. Elmer Johnston, promoter, will count each person attending the Hill-Gobar show tonight in the armory arena as a vote for continuing the sport and each "stay away" as mark against further shows. For five consecutive entertainments, containing some very excellent attractions, the promoter has hardly been able to break even with expenses and he announces that unless the card is supported tonight he will throw up the sponge as a promoter.

GOOD CARD
In the card on tap for tonight, Promoter Johnston has gone more than half way to get the fans to respond. The feature attraction will be a contest between George Hill, Appleton wrestler who has always satisfied the most critical and Goho Gobar, an Hindu wrestler of international fame. In support to this excellent card there are a number of crack preliminaries composed mainly of "home talent" which always are sure to give the most exacting their money's worth. Prices for this excellent card will be the same as for previous events and is in line with most everywhere's purse.

If the show tonight is the financial success that it should be, Promoter Johnston promises to have the best of the west wrestlers in the country before the Paper City fans. He intends to sign Stecher next.

RHODES TO REFEREE
The show will start after 8 o'clock with a pair of mosquito weights as curtain raisers. Barney Rhodes will be third man in the ring.

An unusually attractive semi-wind up is on the card. Bill Tappert of Appleton and Kid Joy of Menasha will "scrap it" out. Appleton fans can have seen both action and can guess what's in store. The two never met before. Kid Joy is fast, clever and has so many holds that it's a pleasure to watch him work. Tappert gleaned some fame as a wrestler previously but this will be his first appearance since this season Tappert is an all around athlete. He was the star of the football contest with the flashy Beatrice, Neb. pigskin chasers last Turkey day and he holds a load of strength that is enough to overcome the best in the wrestling game.

Flem Kane who thrilled the fans at the Osman Hill show by whipping a man almost fifty pounds heavier than himself, will meet King Schwebs of Hortonville who is about Flem's weight. Schwebs has been in a number of contests and hasn't lost a single one.

Hill will enter the ring at about 200 pounds. Goho-Gobar may have a slight advantage in weight. Hill has been preparing for the affair for nearly two weeks and is in excellent shape. Hill had to resort to a variety of offensive and defensive work in order to meet the "bagful" of tricks of the Hindu. Hill probably will use a body scissors and toe hold.

BASKET BALL QUIZ by Referee

TOUCHES BALL
If a player who has put the ball in play from out of bounds touches it again before it has been touched by another player, what happens?

The ball goes to an opponent out of bounds for such an offense on the part of the player putting it in play.

AGAINST WALL
If the backboards are placed directly against the wall are players allowed to run up the wall and shoot for goal?

Players have no such right when the baskets and backboards are so located. The moment the player runs up the wall he is out of bounds.

HUGGING BALL
If a player having possession of the ball hugs it close to his body is it regarded a foul?

Hugging the ball is not regarded as a foul. When a player who is closely guarded so plays the ball, it is regarded as a held ball and put in play by being tossed in the air.

POSITION
When the ball is being put in play at the center of the court by the referee tossing the ball, what positions are the other players required to take?

The other players may take any position they desire, provided they in no way interfere with the jumper.

Big Future For Ice Skating In Appleton If Tourney Is Success

Branch Of Western Skating Association Might Be Formed Here—Hockey Teams Can Be Organized If Skaters Are Interested

The first annual skating tourney which will be held on the Jones park rink on Sunday, Jan. 28, preceded by preliminary tournaments on all the public rinks on Jan. 14 and Jan. 21, is expected to stimulate greater interest in the winter outdoor sport. The rinks are among the city's greatest recreation assets and should be used more extensively than they are. No sport affords so much pleasure and does so much for the health as skating does.

The tournament is for the purpose of giving Appleton skaters a chance to show what they can do on the ice. City championships are at stake, together with valuable prizes which will be announced later this week. A number of star skaters have entered the races and many more are expected before the entries close on Wednesday, Jan. 10.

If the 1923 tournament is a success it will be made an annual event with prizes of great value as the reward for good skating. This year's tourney is more or less of an experiment to find out if the city's skaters want a chance to compete with the best in Appleton.

Arrangements will be made to form a branch of the Western Skating association in Appleton if the tourney proves a success. The number of entries will determine the success of the venture.

Fifty of opportunity is offered every skater to get in the finals through the arrangement whereby winners of the first three places in each event in the elimination races will be eligible to take part in the championship races on Jan. 28.

Only a week is left to get in the entries. Only skaters who make formal application to enter the contests will be permitted to race. This is a great opportunity to the ice stars and they will be the losers if they fail to enter. A number of people have been urging formation of hockey teams in order to provide competition. These things naturally will follow if the ice races indicate sufficient interest.

Fill out the entry blank printed on this page and take it to the Skating Editor of the Post-Crescent.

LAWRENCE MAY PLAY AUGUSTANA JAN. 10

McChesney To Call In Athletes Soon As Contract Is Signed For Basket Contest

With the Lawrence students away until Jan. 8, Coach McChesney is making preparations for the opening of the Little Five basketball schedule on Jan. 12. Negotiations are being conducted with Augustana college of Rock Island, Ill. for a final preliminary game in Appleton Jan. 10. Augustana is making a tour this season through Wisconsin, meeting caging aggregations from the various colleges and normals. The Illinois school signified its desire to play the Lawrentians earlier in the season but due to some undue formal arrangements the contract hasn't been closed as yet though officials from both schools have virtually agreed to play here next week.

In the event the game is decided upon, Coach McChesney will call his caging staff for drill in advance of the opening of the second semester. Lawrence will play its first Little Five game at Ripon on Jan. 12.

WISCONSIN TO MEET MARQUETTE TONIGHT

Milwaukee-Marquette will resume athletic relations with Wisconsin at Madison Wednesday night, when the Hilltop cagers engage Coach Meanwell's Badger varsity in the Wisconsin gymnasium. The game will be the first between the two schools in two years. In the last contest at the Auditorium in 1921, the Badgers managed to squeeze out a four point victory.

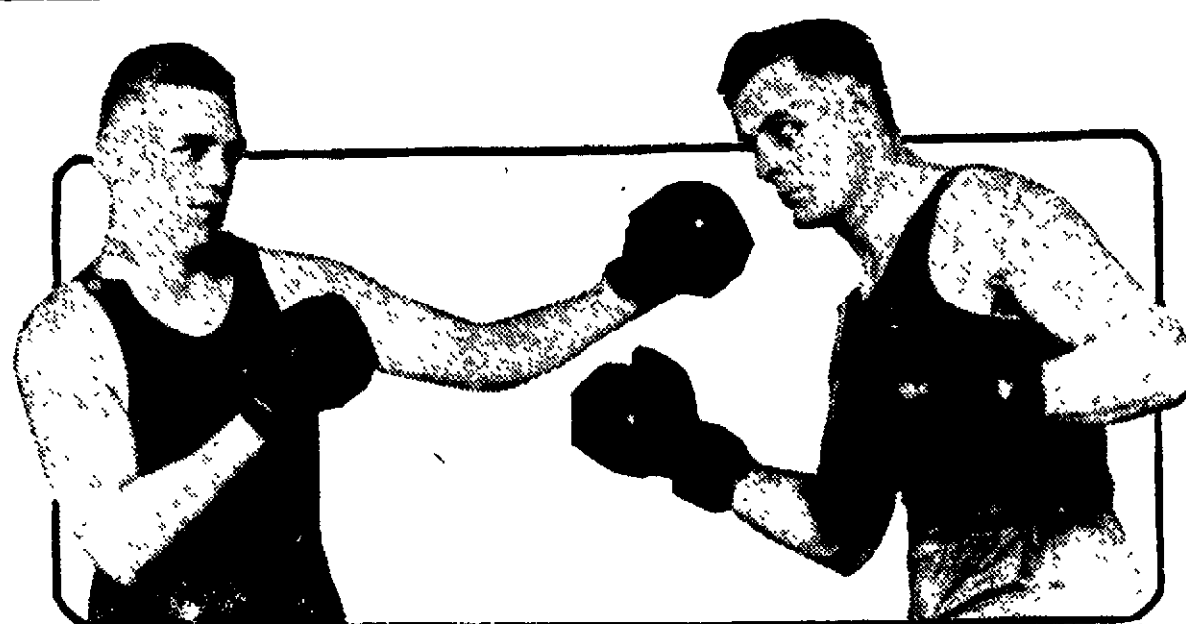

On Gope, Marquette should be favored to win. The Hilltoppers succeeded in defeating Butler college which the night previously had won handsily from Wisconsin.

Badger rooters, however point to the natural slow development of the Meanwhile short pass system. It is well known that for months early in the season Meanwell stresses only the passing and pivoting angles of the game. To shoot from anywhere but underneath the basket, is contrary to the Meanwell system.

Reports from the Wisconsin-Butler game indicates that the Badger short passing offense penetrated the Butler defense easily. It was at shooting once under the basket that Wisconsin faltered. With the passing game well rounded, and it has been since before the holidays, the shooting of the Badgers has improved.

Two dispatch boats engaged in marking dangerous wrecks in the English Channel have located more than 40 wrecks off the ports of Dunkerque, Calais, Boulogne, Dieppe and Havre.

Protege May Beat Dempsey

Is Floyd Johnson heavyweight championship timber?

Since coming from the west unheralded, Johnson has developed faster than any of the big men seeking a chance with Dempsey.

It certainly would be the irony of fate if Johnson wrestled the title from Dempsey, for in a way Johnson is a protege of the champion.

Prior to Johnson's fight with Bob

Martin, in which he scored a win over the soldier champion, he was under the watchful eye of Dempsey for several weeks.

For a week in advance of the Martin bout, Dempsey worked out daily with Johnson, changed his style considerably, and in general adding much to his fitness as a fighter.

Johnson's worth as a ring celebrity is to be determined in his coming fight with Bill Brennan, scheduled for January 12 in New York.

Brennan's recent fight with Dempsey, in which he stood the champion off for 12 rounds, having an edge until the knockout came, is proof of his worth.

A decisive victory over Brennan by Johnson would put him in line for a battle with Dempsey. A knockout by Johnson would just about make him the logical candidate.

High School Basketeers Drill Hard; Meet Strong Foe In West Green Bay

Cagers To Bump Into Veteran Team In First Game Friday Night—Denney To Give Entire Squad Chance

Appleton high school basketball followers who are waiting for the first game of the season at West Green Bay gymnasium Friday night with considerable anticipation are not looking forward to anything that may be regarded a "sure victory."

West Green Bay has already put in more than a month of practice and has already played two regular games, winning both, while the Appleton cagers will play their first games with only six days practice, and only three days drill this week. Following his choice of first squad material, the result of the interclass tourney, coach A. C. Denney drilled his 15 men three days last week while the rest of the students were vacationing. Tuesday evening he sent the men through some serious work but so far no actual scrimmage has been started. The first scrimmage was scheduled for Wednesday night. Offensive and defensive work occupied the athlete's time Tuesday. Passing and pivoting was another matter that was studied. Only individual shooting practice was held.

WILL GIVE ALL A CHANCE

Coach Denney plans to take his entire squad to Green Bay Friday. This means that he intends to give all or nearly all of the men a try. Coach Denney intends to make the game a test of the strength of his men rather than an attempt to win. Of course, the boys will be ordered to whip the West Green Bay athletes if it is at all possible.

West Green Bay opened its season with Seymour and copped the contest. The next victims were the Green Bay high schoolers. The fact that the West Siders were able to beat their bitterest rivals so early in the season indicates a bit of what the Blue and Orange will be up against Friday.

PLENTY OF MATERIAL

One consolation for the school followers is that there is plenty of men for each position. In fact for some there are two or three candidates who are showing up well in practice and it will be difficult to make the final selection. Mills, Heideman, Vaughn, Schweger, Knoll and Johnson are in the fore for the forward positions. Three men are showing up best for the center post. Captain "Rod" Ashman, who has returned to school this week after an injury to his leg, is one of the candidates. Scheurle and Hillman are giving Ashman a close race. Ashman isn't in the best condition yet and it is uncertain whether he will be able to play in the opening tilt.

For running guard Coach Denney will choose between "Pete" Brise and Lutz. Hagen, Hornbeck and Voight are the other guards.

Mills and Vaughn are "hitting the form" more than the other players, according to the report from the school gym. In free shot tests Mills and Brise have been showing up best during the practice.

Wednesday night's scrimmage will be short, according to Coach Denney.

ANNUAL MEETING

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the lot owners of the Appleton Cemetery Association will be held at the secretary's office, Rooms 10 and 11, Odd Fellow's building, City of Appleton, Wisconsin, on the second Monday, being the eighth day of January, 1923, at 7:30 o'clock P. M., for the election of three trustees and the transaction of such other business that may come before the meeting.

Appleton, Wis., Dec. 22nd, 1922.

LAWRENCE CAMPUS TO HAVE ICE SKATING RINK

When Lawrence college students return to school next week a pleasant surprise will greet them. This will be a skating rink on the campus grounds. Orders to scrape the snow off the tennis court to build embankments with the same snow and then flood the grounds, were issued this week by Coach H. D. McChesney as the result of the agreement of the school officials in response to the request made by some of the students several weeks ago.

Agitation for an ice rink was carried on by the students and Lawrentian, the college publication. The establishment of a rink on the campus will give the students a better chance to enjoy a host of winter sports. It is also possible that an ice carnival will be staged later.

APPLETON BOY SCOUTS PLAY KAUKAUNA TONIGHT

Troop Nine basketball team, boy scouts, will play the Kaukauna Methodist church troop Wednesday night at Kaukauna. The Kaukauna cagers suffered a defeat in the hands of the Appleton boys two weeks ago and are eager to even up scores. Troop Nine probably will start up with the following lineup: Kaminsky, center; Zussman and Shapiro, forwards and Cohen and Gabriel, guards.

Jackal skins, regarded by furriers a few years ago as hideous, are fashionable now and the price has risen more than 800 per cent per skin.

TEAMS HAVING HIGHEST TOTALS FAIL TO TAKE MOST GAMES—LITTLE CHANGE IN STANDINGS

CITY LEAGUE STANDINGS

Rainbow Gardens 16 11 592
Elks Imperials 15 12 553

In three out of the four matches held Tuesday night in Appleton City Bowling league the "better bowlers" were losers.

The Rainbow Gardens, though bowling a bigger total lost two games to the Arcades on the Arcade alleys. This was true with the Elks Imperials who dropped two games to the Hoffman Construction Co. ten pin men on the Olympic alleys.

Hoppy's Wieners, formerly Arcades No. 2 bowled two pins more than the Elks 337 but were able to take only one game on the Elks alleys. The Olympics shot 2,619 pins to the F. O. E.'s 2,526, taking two games on the Elks alleys.

The only change in the standings from last week was the slump of the F. O. E. 574 quint to the cellar from its tie for fifth place. Scores:

Cities In Race For Attendance Honors At Elks Tourney Here

Lodges Already Being Assigned Bowling Dates—Green Bay Oshkosh, Kenosha and Milwaukee Vie With Entries

A race between four cities for the honor of having the largest delegation in the Wisconsin State Elks Bowling tournament, which begins this month in Appleton, is drawing the attention of some 25,000 antlered folk in Badgerdom with the final date for official entries set for Jan. 14.

The principals in the race are Green Bay, Oshkosh, Kenosha and Milwaukee. Green Bay had 30 teams last year in the Appleton tournament but the Bay committee is rousing enough enthusiasm to double the 1922 quota. Oshkosh, which had 26 teams and which is situated near to the Paper City will probably give the Green Bay men the closest contest. Kenosha and Milwaukee which were next in the size of representative pin smashers have also announced that their quota will be doubled and will try to lead with the largest delegation. From Milwaukee the state and local committees are expecting a great deal. The Milwaukee club has some 7,000 members and is in a position to outnumber any of the cities with teams.

TO HAVE 65 TEAMS

Last year Appleton Lodge No. 337 led all cities with 52 teams and will seek to have at least 65 teams entered in the tournament this year. However, the Appletonians do not care to figure in the race for attendance honors because of the position as "hosts."

Secretary James H. Balliet of the tournament committee, announced that a dozen cities have already been assigned dates. Among these are Antigo, which is scheduled to bowl here on Feb. 25. According to Joseph Boll to that city, ten teams will represent Antigo.

MARSHFIELD GETS DALE

Marshfield will bowl here Feb. 10 to 11. J. H. Vierey writes that he is sure of five teams but there may be more. The Marshfield delegation plans to take in the state tournament at Green Bay at the same time.

Carl Higgins, in charge of the Oconto bowling activities, asked for March 11. Three teams are sure to represent that city.

Thirty-five men strong will invade Appleton March 3 and 4 from Stevens Point, according to A. J. Schierl. Beloit, which did not enter the tournament in 1922, will be represented this time. W. A. Peridns informed Mr. Balliet.

"There is no reason why we can't do better this year than last year," writes O. N. Yule, Kenosha chairman. Another Kenosha bowling booster is Horace Johnson who will also make the tourney at Green Bay with a crack team headed by Perry Powell, bowler of luxe.

Manitowoc which had eight teams in the Appleton tournament in 1922, will be represented by a much bigger force this year, so writes J. F. Detman, in charge of the tie pin smashing arrangements this year.

HAVE PEP INSTIGATORS

George Hilton, member of the Wisconsin Elks Bowling association executive committee is the "pep" instigator at Oshkosh and promised to be on deck with a record force that should beat all other cities.

Ed Barth, winner of the doubles and all events in 1922, is not only expecting to come back to Appleton for more cash and laurels, but he is stirring up the flames of interest among his brother bowlers in Racine. W. W. Kent, president of the Wisconsin Elks Bowling association, will bring with him from Sheboygan 12 teams at least. The Chair City had nine last year.</
